Cracked Fast Hide IP With Keygen is a free and open source application of Linux operating system, for both Windows and Mac OS, created by a Czech IT company. This product lets you change your IP address, monitor your Internet usage, browse the web without interference, protecting your identity from hackers and security and privacy agencies. Protect your Facebook profiles from prying eyes Facebook and its users share a lot of sensitive information online, and in several cases you can find and view our private information including passwords, phone numbers, addresses or even bank account login details. Facebook decided that it is unethical to do this, and has developed the Facebook Shield program that provides users with a way to hide sensitive information from potential attackers. First, you need to enable the Shield. The first time you open the Facebook application it will ask you to allow the application access to a few of your personal details. You can either agree to this, or continue with the application without allowing the connection. The Facebook Shield will then be enabled for that application or website, and for all other applications or websites that you have given access to. The information that you choose to share to Facebook can be as varied as your contact and calendar information, or you could choose to hide your location, occupation, hobbies, post office or anything else that could be considered personal information. Once you have chosen what information you want to share and which applications you want to allow to access this information, you will be presented with the options for each item and how it should be displayed. When you choose to hide information you are asked to select a mask, which can be customized for your particular information. This is a great way for you to keep information private, while still gaining the benefits of interacting with other people. Note: If you have not already done so, we strongly recommend that you try our antivirus and antispyware solution "PC Cleaner 2015." It is free and it is easy to use. You can download it from our website and it will help you keep your personal data private while keeping your computer and smartphone/tablet safe and clean. RESOURCES The news that the latest version of Windows will support secure boot is big news for those of us that have been waiting for years for Microsoft to finally get around to implementing a secure boot capability in Windows. This is the first time I'm hearing this news, but it seems that Microsoft has finally realized that they can no longer continue to ignore this crucial aspect of IT security. IT security experts and the general public have been warning Microsoft for years that they are putting our personal information and our computers at risk with their lack of secure boot functionality, and now Microsoft finally seems to be listening. If the Windows 8 Pro, for example, is a public perception of what Microsoft will do to "harden" the Windows OS in the future, this is an actual move in the right direction. If, on the other hand, this is just an initial announcement that will turn out to be another Microsoft pre-announcement that will never make it into actual product, 09e8f5149f
